MAKING THEMSELVES AT HOME, - About one of the boldest robberis that has been raof a cirkm of that place. It appears that the burglars, who consisted of a man and woman, entered the house by way of the front door, home. They went directly to the kitchen, spread a clean tatlecloth, got out nis, cake bread, etc., which were found in the pantry, and er joyed a good repast. After this they got a room where the proprietor and his wife ward sleeping, and from there they took three dresses, a skirt, two hats and a few other articles of wearing apparel.

Then they went back to the dining room, and the female took of her calico dress and under stolen from the wardrobe. The cast off garments were left on the floor, also a bundle left in an apron, which contained five yards of flannel, a dress pattern, and remnants of muslin. The supposition is that the thieves must have been alarmed about the time the woman was making her toilet, and forgot to take the package in their hurried exit through the kitchen door, which was found to have been unlocked. The fact of there being a robbery was not discovered by the people of the house until next morning, when the bired girl, who was the first up, found the stuff lying on the floor. Nothing was missed from the house except the wearing apparel and
